KIDDING ON THE SQUARE

The recent reported break in relations between Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, those two merry fellows of the diamond, brought to light a fact that was said to have started during the past season, but which at the time was taken only as a part of their banter, by the fact that they had not had it more spots for both Nick and Al as one can imagine when the truth is known.

Here is the yarn: "One of the fellows of the lads is a boxing act. The gloves are rather matty and the blow struck too rough, but are caught on the shoulder. Whenever Nick or Al goes on the bottom the blow is supposed to be soft. One day however while giving their boxing act, Al thought he would have some fun with Nick so he snatched his partner thus on the jaw, putting everything he had in the punch.

Altrock really was grumpy. He reeled around, dizzy and the crowd thought his real stage was an imitation. They halted the act as a matter of fact. But only Nick and Schacht knew that the punch was real and the acting real.

One of their numbers is to have Nick throw a real baseball when Al dodges. Then Altrock hits a soft policy thing which Schacht takes on the forehead, simulating a dizzy guy taking the count.

Well, Nick crossed Al fully when it came time for the baseball act. Nick wound up and threw the ball but first, Schacht dodged. Then came a real baseball when Al dodged. Then Altrock hits a soft policy thing which Schacht takes on the forehead, simulating a dizzy guy taking the count.

RICKARD MISSING

New York: "The Horse That Jack Built," last getting along in the world, has the famous Madison Square Gardens seen its best days? Some say no. Jack Rickard, as the "Man-Master," the heavyweight champion, drew a gate of 25,000 people at his thirty-third year and a gate of more than 15,000. These are the facts that built and made Madison Square Gardens and the fine people his attractions had brought inside of their doors. STILL HOT WHEN HE RETURNED

When Pitcher Kyle Graham was with the Detroit Tigers he was taking his turn in the bullpen enormous while the league were playing the Philadelphia Athletics (Graham had just purchased a fat dog when he felt that he might relax in wearing up. So with the dog in the back of his mind, he was warming in mustard and the pitcher preparing to dig his money into it he suddenly got the signal from the beach to warm up.

Laying the sandwich down, he hurried to the rubber in the bullpen, for the A's were getting entirely too intimate with the Tiger pitcher then in the box. However he hardly had time to warm up when he was called to the pitcher's mound to help his distressed out league.

As Graham neared the infield on his way in the box it was noticed that he hesitated a moment and, retracting his steps, he shouted something to the others who were in the bullpen.

Later, it was learned that Graham suddenly remembering that hot dog of his and surveying the situation, he discovered that the bases were filled so he had stopped to inquire as to who was coming up to bat.

"Celebrate, Simmons and Perez," informed a teammate.

It then developed that that was the bit of news which had sent Graham back toward the bullpen to call to his mates there.

"You fellows leave that dog

HEARD ON THE STREET

That school girl complexion is great stuff if you get it on both cheeks at the same elevation.

The maiden who used to play "Lord send me a man" now goes forth with the slogan of the undernourished: "I'll get you yet!"

Lon Cheney was noted for his quips, but before he enters, perhaps, he is playing in musical comedy in a theatre on Spadina Street, and the show, what breaks out of a job, Lon applies for pretty work.

"I dunno, I dunno," demurred the producer. "Have you ever got any experience acting without an audience?"

"That's just why I'm here!" shot back Lon with a grin, and the reporter won him a part and his start in pictures.

"It's the little things in the time that count," said the little blonde attraction, when she packed her kid brother from underneath the sofa.

"That's just why I'm here!" shot back Lon with a grin, and the reporter won him a part and his start in pictures.

"Come, now, Annie," comforted her producer, "you ought to be glad that you know enough to be promoted into a higher class."

"But if only you knew enough to be promoted right along with me!"

Assistant: "As this is a cash on delivery order, could you let us know just what time you will be at home tomorrow so that our driver will know when to call?"

Customer: "Oh, that's very awkward. I want him to call when I'm out and when my husband's at home."

Customer: "I want a nice Xmas present for my husband."

Shopkeeper: "How I wish how long you have been married?"

Customer: "About fifteen years."

Shopkeeper: "Bargain counter in the basement, madam."

One of the witnesses in a case being heard in the county court was a very small boy who had been called to give evidence on behalf of his father.

When the boy stepped into the witness stand he looked just like a fresh from a circus. A derby hat was pulled down over his eyes, his neck reached down to his knees, and the trousers he wore trailed on the ground under his knees, while over one of his arms was a big umbrella and his hands were covered with thick gloves. The judge, who was usual, so very serious, burst into a roar of laughter.

The youngster pulled a police summons from his pocket.

"Look sir," he said with a dignified air, "I says here to appear in his father's case."

A good story is told of the famous Canadian athlete, a Canadian athlete, who had been speaking with some feeling about the use of cosmetics by girls.

"The more experience I have of lipstick," he warmly declared, "the more distasteful I find it."

And speaking of dirt roads, have you ever heard this one?

We emphasize service equally with sales. It has always been our belief that a sale does not complete the transaction between us and the buyer, but establishes a new obligation on us to see that his car gives him service.

For that reason we have installed a system of free inspection service at 500 miles, 1000 miles, and 1500 miles by specially trained mechanics. Everything is free except the cost of new oil.

A ducky and his brown sweet, but I dare say I can put it off."

Douglas is noted for his nerve, his shortness of temper and his scarcity of cash. While seated at a lonely breakfast in his club one morning a debt collector broke in, through the door, and presented his bill.

"Sir," said Douglas, glaring at him. "Is this all you know of the wages of decent society? To present a bill to a man breakfasting? Do you know that you are an intruder in this club? Do you know I could call the servants and have you thrown out? If you wish to talk business, go outside and send in your card."

The collector went outside and sent in his card. Douglas picked it up, adjusted his monocle, and read:

"Tell the gentleman," he said, "that I am not in."

Lady: "I suppose," she said, "you are a property qualified driver."

T. R. H. Patterson: "Yes madam."

Lady: "You've never policed any?"

T. R. H.: "Not to my knowledge." She heard a sigh of relief.

Lady: "Very well then, you can give a nickel's worth of rough drive."

Alberta-Money, Alberta-Made, Should Stay in Alberta ... For Alberta Trade

A concerted effort is being made to persuade Albertans to give preference to goods PRODUCED IN ALBERTA in their Christmas shopping. Retail merchants are being asked to assist by giving prominent display to ALBERTA-MADE MERCHANDISE.

Perhaps you have in the past, permitted yourself to be swayed by the eloquence of the sales person, who has casually suggested that what is being offered for sale "is imported." Foreign importations do not necessarily imply superiority.

In Your Christmas Shopping be "Alberta - Conscious"

It does not require much argument to emphasize the advantages of purchasing PRODUCED IN ALBERTA products. Our manufacturing facilities today are such that we can compete in the matter of quality, quantity and price with many of the most advanced and progressive manufacturers of other countries.

FRED TURNBULL ELECTED MAYOR
AT RED DEER

Newspapersmen throughout the Province will be pleased to extend their most hearty congratulations to Mayor Fred Turnbull of Red Deer.

Fred as he is popularly known is a past president of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association and it is safe to predict that if he is half as efficient as he was while president, that Red Deer citizens will have no cause for regret in the choice made on Monday.

Mr. Turnbull is the business manager of the Red Deer Advocate.

PREMIER BROWNE RETAINS GOODWILL AND CONFIDENCE

The Financial Post says that those who knew Premier Brown found it hard to credit the report that he would be asked to resign the premiership of Alberta and accept an appointment as general manager of the Central Selling Agency of the Wheat Pools, although undoubtedly his services were sought.

Mr. Brown has too keen a sense of responsibility of public office to put himself in a position where he would seem to be creating uneasiness in the Legislature of Alberta for his government's course in connection with wheat pool guarantees and the loss of money to the government that is involved. Also he is too much of a statesman to desert the problems of that province at the present time.

Mr. Brown occupies a peculiar position in political life. He is now the head of a U. P. A. Government in Alberta, but is really the head of the Brownlee Government, and although it was the U. P. A. which first put him in office it has not much to do with his government now. What that government might become were he to leave it difficult to guess with the Hon. George Hoadley, formerly a Conservative leader as his probable successor. It might reasonably be a Conservative Government but not long.

Before the recent general election Mr. Brownlee was suggested as a possible member of the King's cabinet, but Mr. King's Government was not returned to office. A suggestion was made the other day that he was likely to join Mr. Bennett's Government. Nor is there any implication in all these suggestions that Mr. Brownlee is lacking in political principle that it is a matter of indifference what government he joins or leaves. It is rather a recognition of the fact that to a remarkable extent he enjoys the good will and confidence of the people of Alberta.

IMPORTANT SUGGESTIONS MADE BY PRESIDENT BEATTY

A few days ago President Beatty made a very important statement when he suggested that the farmers of Western Canada owing to circumstances beyond their control find themselves in need of assistance.

President Beatty is expected back in Ottawa this week and it would be wise for him to give his early attention to the suggestion proffered by Mr. Beatty.

The reason why Mr. Beatty's suggestion merits consideration is the fact that probably no other Canadian citizen has so complete a knowledge of the financial condition of the western farmer.

The manufacturers, the fruit growers, the dairymen, in the past have not hesitated to appeal to the Federal Government to request aid for their individual line of business. No doubt, before making his few public, Mr. Beatty would have a specific remedy fairly well worked out which should be placed before Mr. Bennett and his cabinet with-out delay.

The Provincial Premier of the west will be Ottawa visitors with in the near future, and that time would be most opportune to give the fullest consideration to any suggestions that Mr. Beatty might have to offer.

The greatest difficulty to be surmounted would be to prevent playing of party politics by some of the members but even that difficulty may be kept under control.

TOURIST TRAFFIC IS IMPORTANT

Washington.—Tourists from the United States are expending more than $10 million dollars in other countries each year, exclusive of passage fares and money spent to bring back foreign merchandise. It is announced by the Department of Commerce, directly and indirectly, the tourist trade is exceeding the export and import transactions carried on between the United States and many nations, the report declares.

"The importance of tourist traffic is not limited to expenditures for transportation, lodging, food, amusements, souvenirs and similar purposes," according to the report. "Travelers," it says, "acquire a desire for foreign merchandise which results in subsequent imports, and by word of mouth, as well as by samples, they advertise the products of the countries that they have visited. Hence tourists are actively invited to most civilized countries."

Millions of people each year leave their homes to become foreign tourists. The migration which annually crosses and recrosses the North Atlantic vies in size with some of the great migrations of the past. Last year it is estimated, approximately 16½ million Americans crossed into Canada.

"More than one-quarter of tourist expenditure from the United States goes to Canada. In Cuba the tourist trade is exceeded in value only by the sugar crop. In Europe tourism is no less important as an industry; professional hospitality is pleasing large sums to Germany, France, Italy, Switzerland and other countries."

According to statistics compiled for 1927 and given in the report, United States tourists spent $250 million in France, while imports of merchandise from that country into the United States were $187,000,000, and exports from the United States to France were $225,300,000.

So large has tourist traffic become that it is now computed in terms of trade balances, the report adds. In 1929, travelers from the United States to other lands spent 180 million dollars in the United States, while tourists going out of the country expended $10 million dollars. These sums are divided into three groups representing tourist trade with Canada, Mexico and all other countries in the third group.

"The balance of tourist traffic between Canada and the United States is given as in favor of Canada by 192 million dollars, since tourists from the United States spent 24 million dollars in Canada as compared with 91 million brought into this country by Canadian tourists. Mexico holds a margin of 21 million dollars due to the fact that its tourists spent only 7 million in the United States, while Mexico received 28 million.

Europe and all countries outside of Canada and Mexico are included with a tourist balance of 45 million dollars due to the 517 million dollars spent by tourists from the United States, as contrasted with the 25 million dollars brought into the United States by tourists from these nations.

STRAW PRODUCTS
WONDERFUL POSSIBILITIES

The plant of the wheat farmer during the past few years has been serious and threatens to develop into a major political issue. For every pound of wheat produced by the farmer there is also produced one and one-half pounds of wheat straw. The farmer tries to sell his wheat on a market which is saturated, while his straw largely goes to waste. Can the wheat straw not also be economically used and thus carry its share of the cost of production of the wheat grain?

A pioneer in the development of methods for using wheat straw in an industrial way is George L. Harrison, near St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Harrison has perfected a small plant for the destructive distillation of wheat straw whereby important organic chemical products are produced from the gas and oil which are produced. Harrison claims that each ton of a mixture of oat and wheat straw produces on distillation 1,600 pounds of new, useful chemical products worth at the prevailing retail prices of about $250. When a ton of straw is burned in the open air all that remains is about forty pounds of ash which has only small value as a fertilizer. From the distillation process he obtains disinfectants, fly spray, straw oil, roting and dairy proof material, straw carbon, paints and automobile top dressings. The products are now being produced commercially. As the industry develops it is bound to create a wider market for wheat straw, thus furnishing a new outlet for the products of the wheat grower.

The destructive distillation of the wheat straw also produces a gas which has high value for running internal combustion engines. Its bulk nature renders it unsuitable for use as a motor fuel and as an activator for gas engines.

Wheat straw also is well adapted for making insulating board, in growing demand each year from builders of homes, restaurants and other devices where temperature control is essential. A modern pulp and board mill has been erected for this purpose near St. Joseph, Mo., and is now in operation. This firm is reported to be working on a twenty-four hour schedule turning out 125,000 square feet of straw insulating board a day.

After a brief two week's acquaintance, he invited her to go to the ball game with him.

BREWED BEER
A HEALTHFUL FOOD

Thousands of the working classes, while engaged in hard physical labor, find in beer, a cheap, healthful food, which, besides its nourishing effect, possesses invigorating and strength restoring qualities.

The modest glass of beer has largely replaced the full bottle of more potent liquor. Beer Parlors supply in a legitimate way, the demand for a mild alcoholic beverage.

THIS YEAR
MAKE THE PRESENT COUNT TOMORROW

This year, more than ever, the thought is "Give the home a present." And what could be more appropriate than an Electric Range?

There are approximately 900 meals to be cooked in your home this year. And here's a gift that guarantees every one of them to be perfectly cooked. Think of it—a whole year's cooking problems simplified.

It's so easy, you see, to have perfect results with an Electric Range. Merely adjust the Electric Timer, set the Heat Regulator—put your dinner in the oven—and that's really all there is to it.
You're free for the things you'd rather do—and when you're ready to serve it, there's a delicious meal waiting for you

What better Christmas gift for your family or for your home?
Why not call our representative and find out how cool, clean and carefree electric cooking really is? We'll be glad to point out the superior convenience and economy features of the Electric Range.

It is planned to hold the next Con-

There is some talk of merging the young peoples activities and social activities into one club for an active winter program. If such an association would take an emergent leadership of these affairs, we see quite an opening for such a Club. We believe it would meet with a ready response.

again co-operating in putting over a big Christmas entertainment
